Accommodations included in a student’s IEP must be provided on both the written and performance components of the occupational competency test.

Performance Component – An accommodation is not permitted if it negates the validity of the assessment. Since the performance component is assessing the ability of the student to perform a particular skill; i.e., changing brake pads or preparing chicken, then having the task performed for the student by another person would negate the validity of the assessment.